

Learning at Home for All Ages Responding to COVID-19

Several at-home learning options are available for pre-K through 12th grade students and adults during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Some options:

PBS stations.

- Ohio's PBS stations have developed a new on-air schedule of at-home programming for students and teachers. This will make resources available to homes that have limited internet access.
- The Ohio "At Home Learning" initiative includes a full schedule of daily television programming geared toward students in prekindergarten through 12th grade.
- This programming will be available on Ohio PBS television stations across the state starting in most areas on Monday, March 30, 2020.
- More information about this programming — including teacher resources — is available at pbslearningmedia.org.

CoderZ.

- Amazon Future Engineer is offering free online virtual robotics and coding courses for primary, middle, and high school students and teachers affected by school closures due to COVID-19.
- Through the program, students and teachers can program their own virtual robots.
- Teachers can sign up to give access to their students or students can sign up on their own at GoCoderZ.com/amazon-future-engineer.

CompTIA.

- The tech association is offering a free 30-day license in its IT Fundamentals course, a great way for students to learn if they want to pursue a career in IT.
- Learn more at <https://www.comptia.org>.

CodeAcademy.

- The online provider of coding classes is offering 10,000 full scholarships to CodeAcademy

- Pro to high school and college students for the rest of the year.
- Learn more at <https://www.codecademy.com>.

Ohio. Find It Here.

1. The “e-Learning Opportunities for Teachers and Students” resource offers a number of online options from Ohio museums, zoos, aquariums, and other attractions and agencies.
2. You’ll also find an e-learning blog with additional details on programming.
